GettingHired.com's job portal and online community serve as the bridge between employers and the millions of people with disabilities in this country who are either under-employed or unemployed.

GettingHired.com is designed to highlight your talents, skills, experience, interests, and education and match them to specific jobs and internships posted by our Employer partners.

GettingHired.com is fully accessible and easy to use. We provide you unlimited access to a robust suite of jobseeker resources created to prepare you for the workplace, connect with peers and mentors, and find a multitude of career opportunities – regardless of disability.

We encourage you to register by going online to www.gettinghired.com. As soon as you register, you will be instantly connected to tens of thousands of jobs offered by our participating employer partners who are eager to tap into America's most underutilized, talented labor pool. There is absolutely no cost to you.

We chose the honey bee to represent GettingHired.com because throughout history, the honey bee has been an enduring symbol of industry, productivity, and prosperity. Though there are thousands of bees in a hive, each individual's contribution to the social community is vital to the hive's success.

We invite you to join the GettingHired.com community and connect with employers who are committed to hiring the most qualified candidates, regardless of disability, to meet their critical human resource needs.

GettingHired.com is the most comprehensive national employment and social networking portal specifically designed to connect talented jobseekers with disabilities and employers seeking their talent.
